

CONTENTS

Introduction	4
The overview of the Baltic Sea Region	5
1. Progressing economic integration in the Region	6
2. BSR metropolitan regions as international centres and gateways	9
2.1 BSR metropolises as centres of regulative power	9
2.2 BSR metropolises as centres of innovation, research and development	11
2.3 BSR metropolitan regions as collective symbols and gateways to markets and people	16
3. Small and medium sized cities in the challenge of demographic trends	19
4. Practical solutions in urban-rural relations and partnership	23
5. Saint Petersburg and Kaliningrad as gateways between Russia and the BSR	27
5.1 Development tendencies of Saint Petersburg	27
5.2 Development tendencies of the Kaliningrad Region	28
5.3 Integration potential of North West Russia into the BSR	30
6. Transport accessibility	35
6.1 Fragmented road networks	35
6.2 Interoperability of the BSR national rail networks and transnational railway services	38
6.3 Existing Interreg initiatives on transport corridors	39
6.4 Better accessibility potentials	41
7. Integration of the energy networks	41
7.1 Patterns of energy production	41
7.2 Patterns of energy consumption	43
7.3 Territorial capital of renewable energy	46
8. Bridging the digital gap between the BSR countries	47
8.1 Best practices on e-accessibility in the BSR	48
9. Awareness of the sea use potentials and threats around the Baltic Sea	51
10. The current state of maritime spatial planning in the BSR	53
11. Preconditions for successful introduction of the maritime spatial planning	55
Appendix I: Abbreviations and acronyms used	58
Appendix II: List of the Members of the Committee on Spatial Development in the Baltic Sea Region — CSD/BSR	59
Acknowledgement	61